Locators Assert They Have Mountain of Rich Sulphides

"There is a whole mountain of ore like this," Baker said as he exhibited a specimen weighing ten pounds to a Journal-Miner representative. "It will prove the greatest mineral discovery made here in years," he added. "Shafts have been sunk and cross-cuts run in the ore body in a zone of 300 feet in width. Ore has been found everywhere the ground has been opened. Samples run as high as $85 to the ton in gold. It is considered a remarkable find by the prospectors and miners of that section."

FAMOUS OLD MINE IS AGAIN GOOD PRODUCE

(From Sunday's Daily)

A force of mechanics has been employed during the last few weeks repairing twenty stamps of the eighty stamp mill. Examining the boilers a few days ago the discovery was made that both large boilers were useless. New boilers will be purchased and installed as soon as possible.

gold production of $18,000,000. It was discovered in 1863 by Henry Wickenburg, who is generally considered to have been a son of the founder of the famous Krupp gun factory in Germany. Its history is one of successive lawsuits, shutdowns, and thefts of its rich golden treasures. One of its superintendents was killed while conveying a large amount of bullion from the mine overland to Tucson. The bullion was taken by the murderers, who escaped capture.

The fame of the richness of the Vulture ores spread all over the west soon after its discovery, attracting hundreds of hardy prospectors, miners and fortune hunters to the district. A claim jumper disputed Wickenburg's right to the property, claiming that he was not a citizen of the United States. Wickenburg won the lawsuits that followed.

After its purchase by the Vulture Mining Company it was extensively opened. No timbers were used in the mine, the ground being held by pillars left in the great deposit. Lessees of the property, many years afterwards, removed the pillars and the ground kept caving in until now it is an abyss two acres in extent on the surface and two hundred feet deep. Preparations are now under way to start the sinking of a new shaft from which the deposit will be worked through cross-cuts.

The mine is located fifteen miles southwest of Wickenburg.
